¡LA BIENVENIDA!

Con orgullo we welcome you to the 24th annual meetings of the National Association for Chicana and Chicano Studies. This is the second national conference held in Sacramento and the third in Northern California in twelve years. We have had the great distinction of collaborating with some of the finest conference organizers in our NACCS community. Your presence and participation only enhances what we provide for you. This conference marks a great historical moment as we reach 25 years as an association.

The next 25 years promise new challenges as our academic departments and programs are questioned; as our children are denied access to education; as our friends and families are pitted against each other in terms of "legal" membership in the U.S.; and as our lesbian and gay communities struggle against prohibition of marital status and equal protection as domestic partners. To our dismay the voters of California have embraced these ideals. The writing on the wall indicates that your states will follow suit.

These events mark the appropriateness of our conference theme which is "Chicana y Chicano Scholarship: Un Compromiso con Nuestras Comunidades." As activist scholars our compromiso, i.e. our accountability, is to our communities. Thus, we are exhorted to use our analytical tools to examine the sources of problems faced by our people and to develop solutions. Throughout the conference we address the problems, recognize our achievements, and develop solutions. ¡Si Se Puede!

With this consciousness in mind, the site committee has taken particular interest in fulfilling the mandate for a political action as a body of Chicana and Chicano academics. On Thursday afternoon April 17, 1997, we hold an educational rally in front of the State Capitol. Since we view this action as a central part of the conference, no other activity will be organized during this afternoon. Rather, the rally will be our focus during this time.

We are most grateful to the California State University, Sacramento, and affiliated universities that have provided us with the seed money to organize this conference. Sobre todo, we thank all of the students, staff, faculty and community members who gave their valuable time cumpliendo así con nuestro compromiso. We also thank our Site Committee Chairs and members for all their work and trust that you as conference participants enjoy the fruits of their labor.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT STATEMENT

NACCS acknowledges that sexual harassment has been and continues to be a continuing problem in the association. NACCS is committed to providing a sexual harassment-free environment at its national and regional conferences, meetings, and events. Sexual harassment is the deliberate or repeated unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature. It is distinguished from voluntary sexual relationships by the introduction of the elements of coercion, threat, or unwanted attention. It is the IMPACT of the behavior, not the INTENT, which is used to determine whether the behavior constitutes sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment can also be an “environmental” issue. A “hostile” environment is created by sexual jokes or remarks, sexually explicit pictures or unwelcome physical contact.

Sexual harassment can occur between men and women, men and other men, or between women. There is also same gender harassment and women harassing men. By far, however, the majority of sexual harassment cases involve a man in a position of power over a woman.

Sexual harassment can involve a professor and student; a teaching assistant and student; a supervisor and an employee; colleagues, co-workers, and peers; and/or strangers. Sexual harassment can affect the harassed by causing confusion, self-doubt, humiliation, anxiety, guilt, and physical stress.

Sexual harassment is a form of discrimination that is covered under the Title VII of the amended 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Illegal and unacceptable behavior includes:

1. Unwelcome teasing, jokes, remarks or questions about sex.
2. Unwelcome sexually suggested looks or gestures.
3. Unwelcome and deliberate touching or body contact such as patting or pinching.
4. Unwelcome pressure for dates or sexual favors.
5. Unwelcome letters, telephone calls or materials on the subject of sex.

There are several options in responding to sexual harassment. If you feel sexually harassed, trust your feelings and instincts. You may:

1. Communicate your disapproval with the harasser in person or in writing.
How to communicate is important; be direct and firm.
2. Write a letter to the harasser and in addition, another person with jurisdiction.
 - a. Provide a detailed factual account of what happened with dates, place and description.
 - b. Describe your feelings.
 - c. Explain what you want to happen next.
3. File a legal complaint, documenting all incidents, conversations, and witnesses.
Inform yourself about grievance procedures.

The National Association for Chicana and Chicano Studies, and particularly the NACCS Chicana Caucus encourages those who have been sexually harassed to step forward. Any person who feels she or he has been harassed, should contact a NACCS office or the national office.

Greetings!

As Mayor of the City of Sacramento it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 24th Annual National Association of Chicana and Chicano Studies (NACCS) Conference being held April 16 - 19, 1997 at the Radisson Hotel. Sacramento is indeed pleased and honored to host this important conference.

This year's theme, "Un Compromiso Con Nuestras Comunidades", deals with our responsibility to our communities. Our country needs more young people to realize their ability to make a positive difference in their communities, and your presence today is a step in that direction.

For those of you visiting Sacramento, I hope you will find the time to discover some of our many special attractions and activities. Downtown Sacramento has many outstanding sites, including the State Capitol, Old Sacramento, the California State Railroad Museum, La Raza/Galeria Posada, the Crocker Art Museum, and the new Downtown Plaza.

Best wishes for a productive conference and remember: si se puede!

Sincerely,

JOE SERNA, JR.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

April 16, 1997

As President of California State University, Sacramento, I want to extend my warmest greetings to the Conference Planning Committee, members of the National Coordinating Committee, general membership and guests of the National Association for Chicana Chicano Studies during their 24th annual conference in Sacramento, California.

Our intention, in hosting this important conference, is to provide the national community, our faculty, students, staff and surrounding community an opportunity to take part as presenters or participants. The conference will serve as a forum promoting communication and exchange of ideas among scholars, students and community members across geographical and disciplinary areas. The goal of conference planners is also to facilitate discussions that seek to generate insights leading to effective problem solving to issues encountered by the Chicana Chicano community.

I want to join the other co-host institutions in welcoming you and wish for an exciting and productive conference.

NACCS CONFERENCE ARTIST

YOLANDA M. LOPEZ

Yolanda M. López was born in San Diego, California, and was raised in Logan Heights. Her grandparents fled Mexico to the United States in 1918. Her mother supported her family by working at an industrial sewing machine for 30 years. López moved to the Bay Area two days after her high school graduation, and in 1968 became part of the San Francisco State University Third World Strike. She worked as a community artist in the Mission District with a group called Los Siete de la Raza. Since that point, she has viewed her work as an artist's tool for political and social change and sees herself as an artistic provocateur. Yolanda López received her MFA in Visual Arts from the University of California San Diego.

As a visual artist, Yolanda López is best known for her seminal piece The Portrait of the Artist as the Virgin of Guadalupe an investigation of the Virgin of Guadalupe as a powerful female icon. Classically trained as a painter and drawer, her work in the last ten years has expanded into installation, video and slide presentations. Her video When you Think of Mexico: Images of Mexicans in the Media has toured internationally and is collected in university libraries nationally. Her multimedia series Cactus Hearts/Barbed Wire Dreams, has comprised numerous installations including Things I Never Told my Son About Being a Mexican, an installation that explores identity, assimilation, and cultural change which was part of the major traveling exhibition La Frontera/The Border: Art About the Mexico/United States Border Experience. Her current project Women's Work is Never Done, includes a series of prints, as well as the installation The Nanny, which explores the invisibility of immigrant women as domestic workers; the installation was showcased in the San Jose Institute of Contemporary Art's exhibition Mirror, Mirror . . . Gender Roles and the Historical Significance of Beauty.

All of López's work reflects her on-going inquiry into the importance of visual images as modes of portrayal, access to information, and the development of consciousness and consensus. Yolanda López lives in San Francisco with her 16 year old son.

"La Mano Mas Poderosa" This creative production is inspired, in typical López manner, from several sources. These include: religious symbolism, a 50's comic book look, the border stigmata, and popular art. She states that the images on the poster are derived from real people whose images she has collected from newspaper clippings throughout her life. Counter clockwise the images represent a Watsonville strawberry worker, a professor, a business woman, a baker, and children. López states that the strawberry worker reminds her of her tia. The professor, who is holding a piece of chalk, reminds her of a professor from New Mexico. The business woman, was a black woman whose class membership intrigued her. The baker, was a figure that stood in the background of a picture she once saw. She just gave him the measuring cup. The images of the children were inspired by children she is currently teaching at Horace Mann Middle School in San Francisco's Mission District.

As for the model for the hand, López used her own left hand. Although, she states that the fingers are a little longer than her own. The hand is coming out of the heart of Aztlán surrounded by flames. On the right side of the hand is the UC Berkeley Campanile and on the left side we see a barrio. Asked where this barrio is found, she responds that she made it up—but the palm trees, she states, are Southern California influence.

The NACCS National Office, established by the NACCS Coordinating Committee in 1992 serves as the association's business headquarters. The National Office is charged by the NACCS Coordinating Committee to maintain the association's membership data bank, produce and mail the association's quarterly newsletter, house and distribute the association's publications including but not limited to published conference proceedings, promote NACCS by distributing information about the association to interested individuals and/or organizations, and provide a report to the NACCS Coordinating Committee twice a year regarding the status and progress of the National Office.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF NACCS NATIONAL OFFICE ACTIVITIES

Quarterly Newsletter - The NACCS National Office is responsible for producing and distributing "Noticias de NACCS," an organizational newsletter aimed at informing the association's membership and interested individuals/groups about the activities of NACCS and news and information relevant to Chicano/a Studies.

"Noticias de NACCS" is published quarterly. Its distribution is over 2000. It is mailed to members throughout the U.S. and abroad (Japan, France, etc.). The newsletter contains book reviews, reports on conferences, professional opportunities, reports from members of the NACCS Coordinating Committee including the various caucuses, community news and a host of other items.

Membership Data Bank - The NACCS National Office is charged by the NACCS Coordinating Committee to serve as the central housing and distribution of the association's publications including but not limited to published conference proceedings. The NACCS National Office is presently marketing three publications:

Community Empowerment and Chicano Scholarship - Selected Conference Proceedings of the National Association for Chicano Studies, 1992. Edited by Mary Romero and Cordelia Candelaria.

Chicano Discourse - Selected Conference Proceedings of the National Association for Chicano Studies, 1992. Editors: Tatcho Mindiola, Jr., and Emilio Zamora.

Chicano Studies: Critical Connection Between Research and Community - A special volume by the NACCS Political Action Committee, 1992. Edited by Teresa Córdova.

NACCS Information Center - The NACCS National Office also provides information to individuals/organizations interested in NACCS, Chicano/a Studies and other related information. These items include: A fact sheet about NACCS; listing of Chicano/a Ethnic Studies departments, programs and centers; speakers; and other relevant information.
